

Pleasantries In Bringing Back Alive Beasts of Jungle

By Milton Marmor
BANGKOK, June 19 — (AP) — Drop into the Hotel Trocadero lobby any teatime and see how the snarling beasts of the jungle are rounded up by the world's animal collectors.

Most of the collectors who supply tigers, elephants, tapers, pythons, leopards and other jungle creatures to zoos and circuses seem to be using Bangkok as a base these days. For one thing, there are more animals more readily available in Thailand (Siam), and for another, they are cheaper here.

These collectors usually gather around a table at the Trocadero or the Oriental. Comfortably seated in deep blue leather seats and sipping iced tea or lime squash, they can spend a pleasant afternoon "bringing 'em back alive."

It's here that many deals are completed because the animal collectors—let's face it—don't go in for capturing the beasts in the jungle. The Siamese dealer who sells them the caged beasts doesn't capture them either. He buys them, or has agents go after them for him.

The reasons Americans or European wild game collectors don't get their beasts in the jungles are few and simple.

In the first place, it costs too much. Few of the collectors speak Siamese, so it is difficult to work with the trappers. The government doesn't want them in the jungle anyway, since any harm to a collector would not be good for trade relations. And, perhaps above all, they just don't know how.

Not that they can't handle wild animals. On the contrary, some of the collectors are more adept at that than the young jungle people who snare the beasts, box them and bring them to Bangkok by train for sale to animal dealers.

It's hardly a task for someone who only knows the intricacies of foreign exchange to come here and escort a half dozen elephants and assorted tigers, black panthers, jabbering monkeys or gibbons, cobras and pythons to America by ship or plane.

Girl Unusual Collector

One of the most unusual of the collectors who sits and talks shop in the hotel lobby is a 25-year-old American from Williamstown, N.J. The unusual thing is that she is a girl. It's questionable if one person in a million would spot the gentle-looking young lady as the steely eyed girl who pulled a leopard out of a tree by the tail the other day.

Yet Genevieve Cuprys (Jenny to everyone) did that very thing at the animal farm of Chalerin Patamaphonges, one of the biggest dealers here. She was handling a "tame" leopard when the beast broke loose (there were children nearby), clawed a gibbon and scooted up a tree. Jenny went right after the leopard and jerked it out of the tree. Then she hustled it back in its cage.

You can get hurt doing a thing like that, and "Jungle Jenny" knows it very well. Just last May a black panther broke from its cage while she was superintending loading of a shipment in Bangkok harbor. The snarling animal knocked her down and clawed her right arm badly. Two Chinese crew members also were clawed before the beast was cornered and killed in the ship's engine room after a four-hour reign of terror.

It is understood by all animal handlers that cats are dangerous. The cute looking Cubs are tame enough until the day they turn on their benefactor. Jenny prefers elephants. She took five of them back with her not so long ago, but even elephants sometimes don't know their own strength.

Jungle folk are startled at Jenny's talent for handling five elephants at once. They wouldn't dream of extending their talents to more than the one at hand. Elephants sometimes get cranky and they push a lot of weight around.

If a white man goes up country to hunt wild game and one of his native entourage gets killed, it would cost him plenty. There are casualties, since it isn't easy to bag a killer and put it in a box. However, since Thailanders usu-

Big Business Continues To Get Juicy Plums From the Army-Navy

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—It looks as if small business was getting the same old run-around from the Army-Navy, and that big business was getting the juicy plums, some of them illegally.

During the war, the brass hats contended that the urgency of placing orders forced them to concentrate on big companies. Result was that six corporations handled 60 per cent of all war contracts.

Now, however, with plenty of time and no excuse for favoritism, the Army has recently shown completely unwarranted favoritism toward Westinghouse Electric Company in the buying of water coolers.

Though Secretary Johnson made some high-sounding speeches when he took office, announcing that he would give a break to small business, his office did just the opposite in the water-cooler deal. Here are the unfortunate facts in the case:

When the Chicago Army quartermaster's office requested bids on $100,000 worth of water coolers, it received sixteen. One Westinghouse bid did not come up to specifications, which under procurement regulations should have barred Westinghouse from that part of the contract.

This was protested by the Sunroc Refrigeration Company of Glen Riddle, Pa. However, when Sunroc protested, the Army brazenly turned round and permitted Westinghouse to change its specifications. This change was made even though the bids already had been closed.

Army Is Overruled

Orville Morrison, president of Sunroc, took his case up to the office of Secretary Johnson, but got nowhere. Secretary Johnson's speeches about a fair deal to small business apparently meant nothing.

Finally, however, Congressman Manny Celler of New York, in charge of the House monopoly inquiry, got busy, placed the matter before the general accounting office. There, forthright Lindsay Warren, watchdog of the Treasury, promptly declared the Army's acceptance of the Westinghouse bid illegal.

It took great patience and a lot of work to unravel all this red tape, however, which is one reason Congressman Buchanan of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House lobbying committee, has sent a questionnaire to big corporations asking the cost of their offices in Washington.

What Buchanan has in mind is that big companies spend millions maintaining not only Washington offices, but hotel apartments where they entertain Army officers with a view to getting contracts. Small companies such as Sunroc can't afford this "entertainment" expense.

Yet when Congressman Buchanan, Democrat, sent out his questionnaire it brought immediate protests from Congressman Brown of Ohio, O'Hara of Minnesota, and Halleck of Indiana—the Republicans on his committee.

Base-Fiddle Ching

Cy Ching, who, at six feet four inches, towers above most of his fellow men and has hands like hams, has the thankless job of trying to settle Uncle Sam's strikes.

At the age of 72 he left the U.S. Rubber Company to try to help his government with its labor relations and though he gets kicked around by both sides, has done an amazingly good job. If Ching wanted to, he could write a fascinating book about stroking John L.
Lewis's mane, coaxing U.S. Steel, and trying to get milk for Washington babies. But probably he will never write the book.

The other day, however, he was telling a close circle of friends about trying to settle the coal strike, and of going up the back stairs of New York hotels trying to avoid newsmen during his talks with John L. Lewis.

"Imagine," said Mrs. Ching, as she looked at her 250-pound husband, "trying to hide a bass fiddle."

Backstage Apology

Real facts seldom catch up with the headlines, especially when so much is done behind closed doors. However, a former OSS agent, Archbold Van Beuren of New York, contritely apologized to the Senate committee investigating the McCarthy charges last week.

This fact was little known. Much better known were the earlier headlines, spread by Senator McCarthy when he read a sensational telegram from Van Beuren on the Senate floor.
In the telegram Van Beuren charged that Senate investigators probing Amerasia were not interested in getting the true facts, and that when they met with him, they chiefly tried to discredit McCarthy's witnesses.

Later, however, the author of this telegram came to Washington, appeared before the committee and completely revamped his story. He admitted that the telegram had been cooked up by McCarthy himself, along with Scripps-Howard newspaper reporter Frederick Wolfman who is chiefly behind the Amerasia probe, and by Robert Morris, the bitterly partisan Republican counsel for the Senate committee.
Van Beuren testified that Morris and Wolfman first proposed that he send McCarthy the telegram accusing Senate investigators of whitewash. Then McCarthy himself sent a telegram suggesting certain ideas, which Van Beuren then sent back as his own. Later McCarthy read to the Senate the telegram which he himself had inspired accusing the Senate committee of prejudice and whitewashing.

It was for his part in this plot to mislead the public that Van Beuren apologized.

Ignoring Senate Subpoenas

A somewhat similar attempt to mislead the public was made when McCarthy brought a former FBI man, John Huber, to Washington with the promise that he would give sensational evidence against Owen Lattimore. Then the FBI agent suddenly blacked out, disappeared, and hasn't shown up since. The whole thing fizzled.

Real fact is that Huber had no real evidence.
He knew this and presumably McCarthy knew it. Undoubtedly that was why McCarthy flew to Washington on the same plane with him, virtually held his hand to make sure he would testify. However, after McCarthy deposited Huber at the Carlton hotel and went back to his office, the unwilling witness ducked.

Some newspapers played up the story as if mysterious forces surrounding Lattimore had spirited Huber out of town—which was not true. Actually he was and still is in contempt of the Senate for ignoring a subpoena. But for some strange reason the Senate committee continues to let its authority be flouted.

Acheson, Lawmakers Should Meet in Co-operative Spirit

By Bruce Blossat

Secretary of State Acheson is said to be sounding out Congress to see if the lawmakers want to meet with him regularly to discuss foreign affairs, in the manner of their recent get-together in the capital.

This seems an excellent plan, provided both sides do their utmost to break down the formidable barrier that still exists between them.
Not much headway was made toward a better understanding in their first meeting.

Next time out the participants will benefit if their conference is less of a performance. The noise and glare of newsreel and television equipment made the discussion itself almost incidental the last time.

For his part, Acheson in the future must behave less like a professor of international law and more like an approachable human being.
There's no excuse for frosty aloofness in a meeting whose whole aim is improved understanding among men.

Maybe the next session should be held in a non-air conditioned building in the heat of Washington's summer, so the secretary would have to doff his coat and tie. Then we might get the atmosphere of informality that fits the occasion.

As for Congress, though it has a right to expect warmer treatment from Acheson, it shouldn't expect him to make over his personality completely to suit the lawmakers.

Criticisms of his mode of dress, his natural speaking delivery and other perhaps innate traits are unfair and unwarranted. We're not all cast in the same mold; those who frown on people who are different just because they're different really are defining their own shortcomings.

The legislators owe it to the secretary, furthermore, to come prepared to talk about the issue at hand. No useful purpose can be accomplished if they seek to convert the session into a propaganda field day for the airing of their individual pet gripes about our foreign policy.

The most responsible lawmakers didn't open their mouths last time. It is to them we look for wise guidance of such discussions into fruitful channels. If they fall down, the wild-swinging propagandists will dominate the scene.

This is a promising experiment at bridging the gap between Congress and the Executive Branch which has so often in history handicapped the conduct of American affairs. It deserves to succeed.

Will to Win

Courage is a lesson wherever you find it.
Most recently it was seen in Ardmore, Pa., where little Ben Hogan astonished the world by his remarkable golfing comeback.

In 1948 Hogan was at the peak of his game and seemed set to stay on top for a long time.
Then came the famous automobile accident in which he was seriously injured. The fear was that Hogan never again would play a championship round of golf.

But Ben just wasn't the quitting kind. By the first of this year he was back in competition with the nation's best golfers. He came within an eyelash of capturing a big winter tourney in California. Then came the big test—the U. S. Open.

Still short on the strength he once had, but long on nerve and cagier than ever, Hogan fought his way into a triple tie and playoff.
With the chips down, he put on the steam and beat his two rivals.

Today he's riding the crest again. And that hospital bed in Texas looks a long way off. It didn't discourage Ben Hogan. Adversity can't stop any man who sees it for what it is: a challenge to be met and conquered, and not an insuperable barrier before which he must fall.

If our virtues can topple over into vices, and our strengths degenerate into weaknesses, how can we correct them?

(1) Step off from your life and see it as a whole. Just what kind of total life is emerging? Am I an unbalanced person? Have I grown lopsided? What is the total impression I make on people?
When people think of me, what do they think of?

(2) After looking at your life in the large, now go over it in the minute. Go over virtues one by one and see if they are virtues still. Has your meekness become weakness? Has youth strength become stubbornness? Has your outer doing got out of proportion to your inner being? Have the outer activities become more than your sustaining prayer life? Have you become more of a go-getter than a go-giver? Has your righteousness become rigid and rutted?

(3) Quiet yourself; let down the bars, let Christ go over your life and point out what needs to be corrected. The tendency will be to defend yourself and your virtues. Don't. Relax and let Him render the verdict on each one. Accept that verdict. Don't try to amend it.

(4) Surrender your virtues into His hands for correction. It is necessary to surrender our goodnesses to Him as well as our evils. He will make all our evils into goods, and all our goods into better, and all our better into bests.

(5) Sit down with some honest, sympathetic friend and go over things in your life with him. He can see things you cannot.
For each one is prejudiced in his own favor. You may come out far better than you suspected.

(6) Having looked at yourself, now look away from yourself to Christ. Don't end up by fussily trying to arrange your virtues.
Fix your eyes on Christ for you become like that upon which you habitually gaze. He has all your virtues perfectly blended—plus. Become Christ-centered, not self-centered, even in balancing virtues.

O Christ, I have seen the perfect Man, and I would be like Him. But I cannot be like Thee through my own futile efforts.
Together we can be and do anything. Thou hast me—my lopsided virtues included. Remold me until I stand forth—Thy workmanship of which Thou shalt not be ashamed. Amen.

NOTE TO READERS: We are advised by our feature service that with the coming of summer the wave of interest in religious features has passed its peak and that present plans call for dropping the E. Stanley Jones feature, "Abundant Living." A substantial vote of all clients is required to keep this feature in the newspapers.

The only way we have of finding out whether the Democrat-Capital readers want this feature continued is to have a substantial number of them vote "Yes." So let's hear by return mail from you readers of "Abundant Living."

The Mature Parent

Only Grownups Who Know Themselves
Can Give Children Feeling of Acceptance

By Harold F. Strong
Written for NEA Service

When parents come to terms with their own tears and insecurities, problem children will cease to be problems.

The current vogue of books on parent guidance, our growing interest in some magic way to win our youngsters' love and respect, are indications of the uncertainty we feel in our dealings with them.

But in our zeal to follow the experts' prescriptions for giving children "understanding" and a "feeling of acceptance," we have lost sight of the all-important fact that these good gifts can be made only by parents who understand and accept themselves.

The mother of a boy branded in court as "incorrigible" said to me: "I tried to keep a decent home. He had love. But he always had a will of his own. I never dared cross him."

She was suffering from humiliation and grief over her son's trouble. She was also suffering from fear of him. Although she loved him sincerely, fear was the stronger; that's why she was in trouble.

When we grant children the right to their own ideas, to speak their own minds and feelings, we should not forget to claim the same rights for ourselves. We live by our convictions of right and wrong. And we can champion these convictions fearlessly, without dread of inducing dark and mysterious ailments in our children.

A child's emotional health isn't endangered by a just and indignant rebuke to something wrong.
It can be seriously impaired if he has to live with a parent made irritable and uncertain by suppressed humiliation and resentment.

When you find yourself constantly excusing your child's bad temper or impudence, it's time to take inventory of your feelings, not of his.

Don't be shocked when you discover what you really feel. If it is indignation and anger, accept them. Your reaction is proper and natural. If you accept it, you'll find your own way to convey your indignant reaction as natural and proper to your child —and give him perhaps his first inkling of the human being behind the parent he has bullied and taken for granted.

When we withhold correction from a child who needs it, our motive is less often love for him than fear of what he may do to hurt us in reprisal.

The Doctor Says—

Regard Polio With Caution; No Need to Become Hysterical

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

The fact that polio, or infantile paralysis so often strikes without warning and in other ways seems to behave so mysteriously has made people much more afraid of it than they ought to be. For example, last year more than 42,000 cases of polio were reported in the United States.

Although the largest number ever to be recorded in a single year, this was only a very small part of the population. Furthermore, only a few victims died and only about half of those attacked had any permanent paralysis even including those whose paralysis was slight.

The polio last year was not evenly distributed in different parts of the United States. The attack rate varied from 86 for every 100,000 people in Idaho to

SMEAR CAMPAIGN

By Edwin Rutt
Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Bill Jarvis has been nagged over a malicious gossip campaign directed against Hilda Sands, a pretty girl at a swank vacation resort, where Bill is the guest of the parents of his brother. Her brother, Bill, has met Hilda and has found her charming.
But when he asks Hilda to picnic with a group of young people, including her and himself, Hilda says she has something important to do that night.

VI

The picnic on the tiny island, to watch an outsize launch conveyed a dozen of the younger crowd, began joyously and noisily.
Bill, with Lloyd, Dick and other gentlemen, collected firewood. After that the girls took over, turning out appealing, if indigestible, concoctions of the hamburger-frankfurter-onion variety.

Bill ate prodigiously, then relaxed with the replete now-quieter group around the dying fire. His head kept nodding, his eyelids drooping. He tried to discipline them, and failed.

He was conscious of nothing more until something hard dug into his ribs. The hard thing, when he sat up blinking, turned out to be Bev's toe. Lloyd Williston towered at her side.

"Well, Rip Van Winkle?" Bev said.

"Wh-wha'd I do?" mumbled Bill. "Pass out?"

"You and just about everybody else. Lloyd and I cleaned up all this mess practically unassisted.
Now I want to go home."

She spoke with her usual gaiety out, somehow it sounded a little corred. And on the ride back she seemed preoccupied.

"What's the matter?" Bill asked.
She shrugged a queer half-irritated movement. "Just tired. I'm going to bed the minute we get in."

"Me, too," said Bill. "I could use more shut-eye."

They slipped away, leaving the rest of the party hanging around the dock loath to break up the evening.

In the Inn's deserted upper hallway, Bev gave Bill a sleepy goodnight kiss. Then he went toward his own room.

He had to turn a corner of the corridor. He turned it, the thick runner on the floor muffling his footsteps, and stopped short—breath catching. The next second he made himself hurry on.

A door to Caroline Marr's room on his right had opened, quickly, softly. It closed again, but not quite enough.

And Bill remembered, abruptly and strangely disturbed, Caroline was still on the dock.

OLD Mrs. Fasker appraised Bill three days later out of shrewd steel eyes. "Trouble," Mrs. Fasker said. "I sense trouble. Bill Jarvis, in this woodland paradise."

"Now what makes you think so?" But Bill was uncomfortably aware that, if she pinned him down, any denial he might make would ring falsely.

"Young man," said Mrs. Fasker,
"it used to be my business to observe people and—ah—situations.
I served up my observations, smothered under trips and stuff, to the reading public. Well, I don't write any more. But I still watch people. And situations don't have to crash on my head before I recognize them."

Bill supposed that he must have been rather obvious. He guessed Mrs. Fasker had noticed him mooning by himself too much of the time for a guy engaged to an alluring girl who was right under the same roof. And, undoubtedly, Mrs. Fasker was aware of the eternal bridge game on the side verandah.

Bev had been involved in that running game almost constantly, playing—it seemed to him—a little feverishly. Indeed, earlier this afternoon, he had filed protest.

Bev had given him an odd look, but answered lightly: "Oh, you see enough of me. Go play golf or something."

But the light hurried tone had not allayed his forebodings. Bev was remote, preoccupied, lately.

Mrs. Fasker wagged a venerable head: "But it's no business of mine. Run along! I want to read.
But remember, I'm on your side."

Dismissed, Bill wandered off, doggedly pursuing an interrupted thought.

He arrived at something that, momentarily, he considered a decision. If he'd done anything to displease Bev, she had a right to tell him so. He started determinedly for the Inn. Thing to do was yank her out of that confounded game and go into a hodgepodge.

He approached the Inn. The bridge game had just broken up.
Bev detached herself from the little group around the table, came toward him. On the way she sneezed, suddenly and violently.

HE surveyed her. The small straight nose was pinkish around its nostrils; her black eyes seemed to swim inordinately.

"You've got the beginnings of a cold, kid," Bill said. "What about dinner in bed, aspirin and a hot drink?"

Bev sneezed again. "You might have something, at that."

Mrs. Coulter, when informed, was in unequivocal agreement.
Bill had his own dinner with the elder Coulters and later accepted Coulter's invitation for a liqueur in the bar.

Coulter was silent a space, staring into his amber-colored glass.
But finally: "Anything the matter with her, Bill?"

"Who, sir?" Bill asked, a little vaguely.

"Bev. Seems to me she's been kind of funny lately. I—well, I'm not quite sure what I do mean."

"I hadn't noticed anything," Bill stretched the truth.

Coulter frowned. Before he could say more, a trio of his friends appeared, claiming him for billiards. Bill finished his drink haptily and excused himself.

Proper Signalling For Bicyclists

The proper signals for bicycle riders to use when stopping and turning left were switched when they appeared in the Sunday Vacation Edition. The five signals, as first printed, are correct in some states, but not in Missouri, according to the highway patrol. Note that the "stop signal" on the left is with arm at a right angle. The left turn signal is made with the arm extended down. These signals are identical with those of automobile drivers.

Press Agent Declares Dorothy Brave Girl

LONDON, June 19—(AP)—Dorothy Lamour is enroute back to Hollywood today with an 18 inch scratch on her right leg and a new girdle.

An old girdle was responsible for the scratch—a "really deep one" said Miss Lamour's London Press Agent, Mrs. Jack Oliphant—during her appearance here last month at the London Palladium.

It happened this way, said the press agent:

Miss Lamour, changing quickly backstage from street garb to a soring, ripped off her girdle. And the stocking faster on the girdle ripped her leg "from above her knee to her ankle."

"She had to be taken quickly to a hospital to staunch the blood," said Mrs. Oliphant. "but she was back doing her act in 20 minutes. What a brave girl she is."

Mrs. Leist to go To Corpus Christi

Mrs. Henry Leist, former Sedalia, now of 2636 Beaumont, McAllen, Texas, writes a member of the Democrat-Capital force stating she is leaving the 28th of this month for Corpus Christi, Texas, to remain during the summer months. She will be at the Princess Louise hotel. The heat, she writes, is intense in McAllen, the temperature ranging from 99 to 103 all the time.

Mrs. Leist asks about many Sedalia friends, still keeps her interest in and her loyalty to the St. Louis Cardinals, and closes her letter, as she always does, by declaring she still loves good old Sedalia, and there will never be any place like it to her.

Call For Grass Roots Interest

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 19—(AP)—President Truman called on the nation's governors today to stir up grass roots interest in American foreign policy.

In a letter to Gov. Frank Carlson of Kansas, chairman of the annual governors' conference in session here, Mr. Truman said the governors "have a wonderful opportunity to exert leadership in stimulating people to take a more active interest in the grave question of how to preserve world peace."

"Some people feel that foreign policy is formulated and carried out entirely at Washington and in our foreign service in many other lands," the President said. "But the strength of our foreign policy rests on an intelligent understanding and support of the people at the grass roots."

Secretary of State Acheson will discuss foreign policy problems at a round table with the governors tomorrow.

A demonstration on "How to Lay a Pattern on the Material" was given by Mary Jo Moriarty. Several articles were cut out. After the meeting was adjourned, refreshments were served.

Less Income to Farmers This Year

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(P)—Crop and livestock marketings the first six months of 1950 will bring Missouri farmers less income than for the same period last year.

The Agriculture Department said that estimates for May and June are still tentative, however.

Cash receipts for the 1949 and 1950 January-June periods in Missouri were $269,794,000 and $243,335,000.

The department said the decline was caused by a smaller volume of marketings and a decrease in prices paid the farmer.

Improvement Of Pastures

Specifications on Practice Given In Handbook

Establishing or improving permanent pastures is listed as practice No. 7 in the 1950 Pettis County Agricultural Conservation Program Handbook and is also one of the five "Group I or Special" practices this year. The rates of assistance on this practice is $12.50 per acre where the application of limestone is less than 3 tons per acre, or $17.50 per acre where the application of limestone is 3 or more tons per acre.

The performance of this practice according to specifications designated in the county Handbook must be complete in all respects before the payment is approved by the county committee. These specifications include the preparation of a suitable seedbed by plowing, disking, or springtilling — all such operations to be on the contour if the slope of the land exceeds 2 percent; the application per acre of at least 100 pounds of plant food contained in a fertilizer having the chemical analysis needed as determined by soil tests; the application of limestone at the rate of at least 3 tons per acre unless it is determined the soil is not deficient in calcium; the seeding of a pasture mixture approved by the county PMA committee—such seeds to be used may include brome grass, alfalfa, birdsfoot trefoil, ladino, timothy, bluegrass, red top, lespedeza, orchard grass, alta fescue, and red, sweet and alsike clover.

New Pasture Mixture

In establishing new pastures or reseeding old pastures, a well-adapted mixture should be used. A high quality seed, with good germination, free from weed seed, and composed of adapted grasses and legumes should be used.

Limestone and fertilizers containing phosphate and potash give best results on these pastures when they are placed well down into the soil. Phosphate becomes fixed in the soil almost where placed and since potash and limestone move downward very slowly, it is desirable to place these materials deep enough so they will be close to the feeder roots of the plants. When this is done, the lime and mineral fertilizer will react more rapidly in the soil. An adequate application of needed plant food will last several years.

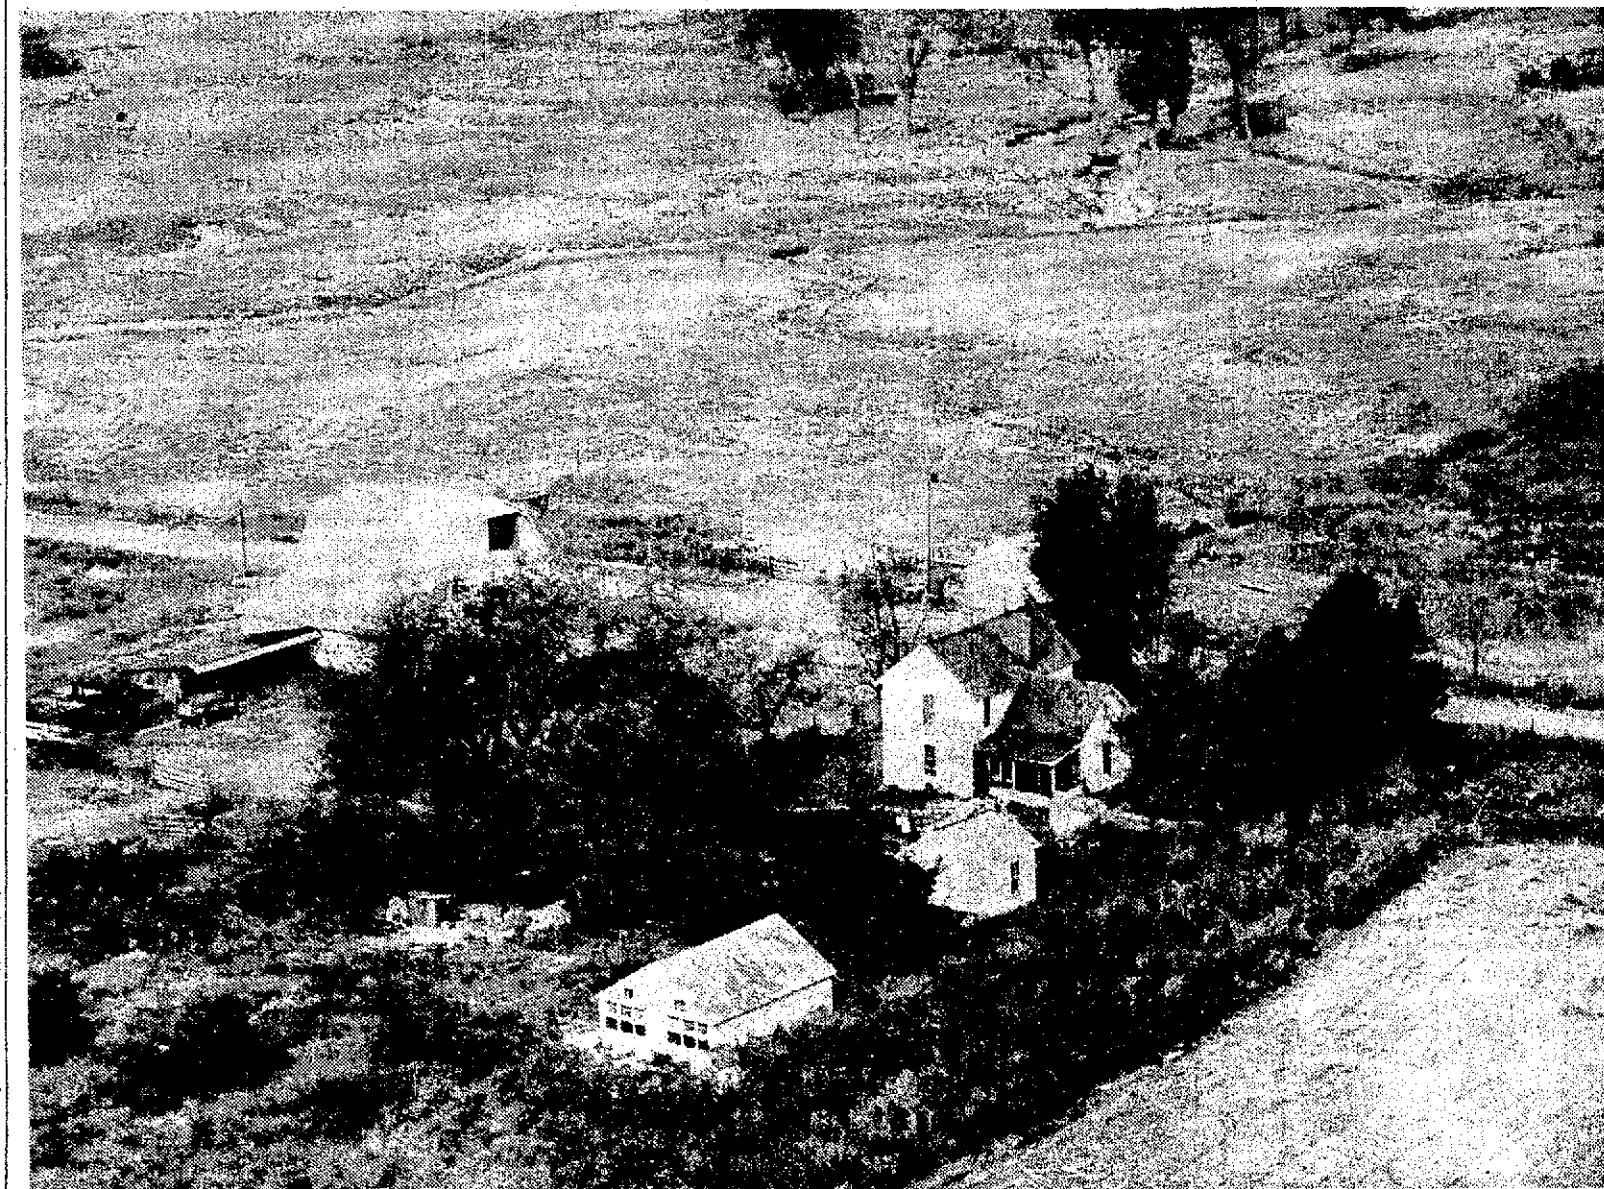

For each two and one-half acres of cropland used for crop production in Pettis county, there is approximately one acre used for permanent pasture according to reports obtained from farmers and now on file in the office of the Pettis county Production and Marketing Administration. The livestock carrying capacity of many of these permanent pastures is exceedingly low because of the depleted soil fertility, over-grazing, infestation of unpalatable vegetation such as tickle grass, broom sedge, red sorrel, etc., which have low nutritive value. In the past many farmers have been guilty of cultivating their land until all the plant food had been used in the production of grain crops and when it was no longer suitable for such use due to serious erosion and lack of ability to produce was left idle to return to wild grasses, weeds and brush. Much of this land is now termed permanent pasture.

Soil Treatment

The dominance of these unpalatable weeds and wild grasses in poor pastures reduces the livestock carrying capacity and accelerates erosion. Some of the land used for permanent pasture is now so low in fertility and so badly eroded that it may be better suited to the production of timber. Only those areas suited to pasture should continue to be used for that purpose and should be given the soil treatments necessary to grow nutritious pasture forage.

A good pasture improvement program represents the best use for a considerable portion of our land in Pettis county and it is a program which is gaining in popularity through the evidence of results seen on farms where the practice has been carried out during the last two years. A special offer of assistance was made under the 1949 Agricultural Conservation Program for the seeding of permanent pasture plots. Under this program a total of 248 acres was seeded according to specifications

Mystery Farm Pictures in Central Missouri---

Whose farm is it?

Occupants of the above farm home may have wondered this spring about a plane buzzing low over their buildings. The picture explains it. The airplane pilot didn't know whose farm it was. The photographer didn't either. The two of them just flew around the Central Missouri area served by the Sedalia Democrat-Capital newspapers and took pictures. They couldn't take pictures of all the farms but they got as many good shots as possible during the light time.

So about once a week hereafter, until the pictures run out,

The Mystery Farm picture which appeared in the Sedalia Democrat last Monday and the Capital on Tuesday morning was of the farm belonging to Olin Ragar. The farm is seven and one-half miles northwest of Green Ridge. Mr.

Ragar owns the 230 acre farm on which he has lived 36 years. He farms it, his main crops being corn and oats and also has a herd of 40 Herefords.

Mr. Ragar is married and has one daughter Ola Fay, who is a junior in Green Ridge high school.

The farm pictured in the "Farm Mystery" two weeks ago today, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Mahin. The farm, which consists of 370 acres is located five miles southwest of LaMonte and about 12 miles west of Sedalia on the Main street road.

The Mahins, who are the parents of four children, all married and living away from home, have owned the farm since 1920. Mr. Mahin does general farming and raises Angus cattle and a few hogs. Mrs. Mahin is taking care of about 100 chickens.

The house on the farm has seven rooms and is modern.

Pasture Growth Being Studied

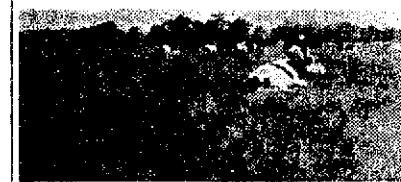

The small plot around which the men are standing was fenced out at Melvin Turner's (3 miles west of Sedalia on highway 50) to show total growth on the pasture demonstration. This picture was taken during the pasture meeting there May 26th.

This pasture was terraced, limed, fertilized and seeded at a county "grow grass" meeting on September 24th, 1948 at which time Melvin was a member of the local Balanced Farming association. The pasture mixture seeded included brome, alfalfa, ladino clover and timothy.

A number of fertilizer manufacturers visited the pasture Tuesday, June 13, as part of a state wide tour viewing results of fertilizer treatments.

Contented Cows on Turner Pasture

Seven of the eight cows grazing on the pasture demonstration at Melvin Turner's have their fill and are "at ease." Melvin reported increased production too when he turned his 20 cows on the ten acres on May 1. The 17 in production increased 43 pounds each in the first two weeks on the grass as compared to the previous 2 weeks on bluegrass pasture and other wild grasses.

M. J. Regan, extension dairy specialist said recently that 100 pounds of nutrients from pasture cost only 29 cents, from hay 49 cents, from silage 91 cents and from corn $1.29.

The pasture is located just west of the small roadside park. The area just inside the gate was left as a check strip with no treatment. Visitors who go through the gate are urged to BE SURE and CLOSE IT.

Allotments on Wheat Acreage

Wheat acreage allotments will be in effect for the 1951 wheat crop according to word received by the Pettis County PMA committee from the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

An afternoon meeting will be held June 28th with Mrs. John Silsby.

Imhauser Paces Chiefs To 2-1 Win

Pitchers' Duel Finds Hurlers Dividing 23 Strikeouts, 7 Walks

Joe Imhauser paced the Sedalia Chiefs to a six hit, 2 to 1 victory over the Jefferson City Stags at Jefferson City Sunday night as the Chiefs maintained top place in the southern division of the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League.

Striking out 13 of the men to face him Imhauser also led the team's hitting with a double and two singles in four times at bat. He passed four men on walks.

The righthander was opposed in the pitchers' battle by a young southpaw Bergeman, who was touched for seven hits, struck out ten and issued three bases on balls.

Other Sedalia hits were singles by Walker, Waters, Holst and Whitworth. The only Sedalia extra base hit was Imhauser's two-base drive.

Jefferson City's only tally came in the eighth frame when Becker walked, stole second, took third on an error and scored on a single by Nilges. Nilges' single was followed with a triple by Klemme but the runner was thrown out at the plate.

Wednesday night the Chiefs will play the third place Moberly club in a night game at Liberty park. The game is scheduled for 8:15 o'clock. Thursday night the Chiefs will meet Booneville in a non-league benefit game for Larry Vilmer at Liberty park. The proceeds of this game will be turned over to the Chiefs' second baseman, who broke his jaw in an earlier contest.

Sports Staff in East Berlin Quits

BERLIN, June 19—(AP)—The entire sports staff of a Communist controlled east Berlin newspaper—three editors and a secretary—resigned today in protest against what they termed "orders to write sports from the political viewpoint."

The newspaper is the National Zeitung, organ of the national Democratic party. This is a party formed under Communist auspices with the announced purpose of enrolling former Nazis.

The sports writers said they walked out because they had been ordered henceforth to confine their reports to sports in Soviet-occupied east Germany and to deliver their accounts "from the political viewpoint."

Missourians in Skeet Record

RENO, Nev., June 19—(AP)—John Garrison and Charles W. Shikett of Joplin, Mo., yesterday broke the 11-year-old two-man skeet team record at the Great Pacific Open shoot.

Garrison hit 200x200, Shikett 199x200. The previous mark of 397 was set in 1939 by Bud Overby and W. Jungmeyer of Florida.

Garrison added extra laurels, winning the all-bore championship from Ed Castagnetto of San Francisco after they were tied at a perfect 200x200.

Improve your SWIMMING

with SHIRLEY MAY FRANCE

By Shirley May France
Written for NEA Service

First of 12 lesson articles by the plucky teen-ager who's now getting ready for her second attempt to lick the English Channel.

You really can't improve your swimming until you find out what you're doing wrong. I think what you should check first is your position in the water. This varies a great deal, of course, between individuals. Some people naturally swim higher in the water than others.

Just make sure that you're neither too high nor too low in the water. If too much of you is above the surface, you have to work too hard to pull yourself along. If too much is below, your body is actually working like a brake and slowing you down.

The dotted line in the picture shows you about where the water comes on me. Notice that my foot, even at the height of the kick, never completely leaves the water. I find that suits my style best.

Redbirds Edge Out Sedalia in Contest Sunday

Both Teams Get 10 Hits as Sedalians Muff Opportunities

After trailing for seven innings the Sedalia Cubs tied the Jefferson City Red Birds in the eighth but were unable to break ahead and the Red Birds pushed two runs across in their half of the ninth inning to give them a 6 to 4 victory over the Sedalia club at Liberty park Sunday.

The Red Birds scored two runs in the first inning on an error, a walk, a single and a double.

One run was unearned. In the third the Cubs put one run across the plate on a walk, a wild pitch and a single. Two doubles and a single in the fourth inning gave the Red Birds another run. Red Birds then went scoreless until the eighth when they edged another run across. Scoring two runs in the sixth the Cubs tallied in their half of the eighth to tie the ball game, but their rally fell short and two Jeff City runs in the top half of the ninth clinched the contest for the visitors.

Buermeyer, on the hill for the Red Birds, scattered ten hits and gave up seven bases on balls. The Cubs were unable to capitalize on their opportunities and left 14 men stranded on base. Newhill, for the Cubs, also gave up ten hits.

Alberts, Red Bird shortstop, led the hitting attack against the Cubs with three hits out of five times at the plate. Slocum, Cub leftfielder, also got 3 safeties in five tries, and Ditton, Sedalia first baseman, pounded out two hits in four attempts.

The Cubs' next game at Liberty park will be against the Holden Chiefs Friday night at 8:15 o'clock. The Cubs will hold a meeting of officers at the Chamber of Commerce office tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Score by innings:
Red Birds 200 100 012—6 10 3

Dodgers Cut Red Birds Lead To Half Game

By Joe Riehler
Associated Press Sports Writer

"If we could only beat Boston we might have a chance." This was manager Red Rolfe's stock answer to spring queries regarding Detroit's pennant chances for 1950.

Rolfe knew what he was talking about. His Tigers won only seven games from the Red Sox in 1949 while losing 15. They finished fourth, 10 games behind the New York Yankees.

The Tigers have met the Red Sox a dozen times thus far and have come off with nine victories. That is two more than they were able to win from Boston in their entire 1949 season. That, in a nutshell, is the chief reason why the Bengals are leading rest of the American league by two full games today.

Detroit made it nine triumphs in the last 10 games yesterday—the sixth in succession over the Red Sox—by trouncing Boston, 10-2. Art Houtteman went all the way for his eighth victory.

Despite the victory, Detroit's first place margin was shaved a half-game by the Yankees, who whipped the St. Louis Browns, 15-5 and 9-0, in both ends of a double header in St. Louis.

Cleveland's Indians ruined "Father's Day" for Connie Mack, baseball's oldest daddy, by blasting his Philadelphia Athletics 10-0 and 7-0, and 21-2. After Bobby Phillips moved to within a game and a half of the top, tripping the Cincinnati Reds twice, 4-3 and 4-2.

Defeat Cardinals 9-0

Brooklyn's Dodgers climbed to within a half-game of the National League leading St. Louis Cardinals by whipping the Redbirds for the third straight time, 9-0. Philadelphia's third place Phillies moved to within a game and a half of the top, tripping the Cincinnati Reds twice, 4-3 and 4-2.

Junior Legion Wins 13-2 At Concordia

Sedalia Club Posts Thirteenth Straight With Sunday Game

In a game at Concordia Sunday the Sedalia Jr. Legion defeated the Concordia Jr. Legion 13 to 2 to give the league leaders their thirteenth straight victory.

Sedalia began scoring in the second inning as Bob Bartlett and Chester O'Bannon drew bases on balls. Larry Mines singled to score Bartlett. The pitcher David Johnson was safe on an error by the shortstop, advancing O'Bannon and Mines to second and third. Don Broadus hit into a fielder's choice which caught Johnson at second base and scored O'Bannon from third. Bill Morgan then doubled to score Mines. Bob Shawver walked to load the bases and Broadus was forced in when Floyd Burton was passed. Morgan then scored on an error by the catcher. Bill Dey flied to the rightfielder and Bartlett, batting for the second time in the inning, struck out.

In the last half of the second Concordia scored one run on an error, an advance on a force play and a single by Concordia rightfielder Lampe.

In the third Sedalia scored another run on two singles and two bases on balls. The run was forced in after the bases had been loaded and Shawver drew the second pass of the inning.

During the fourth inning another run was scored by Sedalia on a walk and a double.

Sedalia Scores 6 Runs in Fifth Six Sedalia runs were scored in the fifth inning as Broadus walked. Morgan tripled to score Broadus. Shawver was hit by a pitched ball and Burton walked to load the bases. Dey then singled to score Shawver and Morgan. Bartlett and O'Bannon walked to force in a run. Skip Schultz, pinch hitter for the pitcher Johnson, singled to drive in two runs. O'Bannon was picked off third to end the inning.

The game's final run was scored in the 8th by Concordia on two walks and a single by the pitcher Schnakenburg.

Morgan led the hitting for Sedalia with a double and a triple. He was followed by Mines with a double and single and Dey with two singles.

The Jr. Legion will play their next game Friday in Columbia.

Score by innings:
Sedalia 051 160 000—13 10 3 Concordia 010 000 010—2 3 2

Johnson and Mines; Arnold and Johnson (5); Schnakenburg and Rohman.

Chicago Cubs twice, 8-0 and 10-5, to creep to within a half game of the fifth place Bruins. Boston's Braves won their sixth straight, defeating Pittsburgh 8-6 in the first game of a doubleheader; the second was called after nine innings on account of darkness and a curfew law with the score tied at 8-8. The game will be replayed tonight.

The scheduled doubleheader between Washington and the White Sox in Chicago was postponed by rain.

Jr. Blues Win 8-5 Over Warsaw

The Teen-Age Blues defeated the Warsaw Jr. Legion 8 to 5 Sunday afternoon in a game played at Housel park.

Warsaw scored first with 2 runs in the second inning. The Blues came back in the third to tie with 2 runs on a line single by Watson, another by D. Higgins, an error by Lane, a walk to Walter and a hit batsman, forcing in a run.

The Blues went ahead 3 to 2 in the fifth on a walk to Watson and a double by Higgins. Warsaw tied it in the sixth and again the Blues went ahead in the last half of the same inning as they tallied a single run on a single by Vaughn and two fielders' choices.

In the eighth the Blues scored four runs to give themselves a substantial margin. The scoring came after Watson was safe on an error, Higgins singled, Lane took first on an error and Vaughn tripled to left, scoring three runs. Smith and B. Higgins singled to score another run, and Thomas grounded out to end the inning. Warsaw scored two more in the top of the ninth, but failed to equal the Sedalia Blues.

D. Higgins led the Blues hitting with four hits in five trips and B. Higgins followed with 3 for six. Watson and D. Higgins each scored three of Sedalia's eight runs.

Smith went the nine innings for the Blues to gain his fourth victory of the season. Wiest and Wymann pitched for Warsaw.

Score by innings:
Warsaw 020 001 002 5
Sedalia 002 011 04x 8
